

The Bone Collector's Son

BY: Paul Yee

Report: Koshi

The Bone Collector's Son is a great piece of literature that explains terrible things that not only happened in Vancouver but also in most western countries. People who are being persecuted in this book are the Chinese but other races have also been persecuted such as Indians, Africans, and other Asian populations. :(

This book is about a boy (Bing) he is a Chinese kid that lives in China town in Vancouver. He is fourteen years old. He helps his miserable, gambling father dig up old graves and send the bones back to China to their families. Not only was Bing scared of ghosts but any time he held a bone in his bare hands he would spew up all of what little oatmeal he had. Soon he got a Job in a haunted house.

But I can't tell you the whole story can I, so the rest is for you to find out. 3:)

My favourite character was Bing because he was so courageous and overtook his fear twice and punched Red Checks in the nose (hahaha!) :P

My least favourite character was Red Checks because he pushed Bing and he was racist. :(

My favourite part of the book was when Bing found the skull and brought to his father. I thought this good because it made Ba feel better. Bing was letting his father down by not helping him with his job.

This book reminds me of my friend at school who gets bullied because he is overweight so I chase the bullies away (literally). I let him use the swing and the t-roller and tell other people to leave him alone. :D

I would give this book 9.8 because it was a good read and a great ghost story but it had too much racism. I learned how destructive racism can actually be. Racism is when people treat individuals who are in a different race badly or in a different way. The people who rioted broke windows and almost killed people. It was a great book.